Through data management, relationships have been forged which should persist into a post-Brexit Europe.

The COMPASS project has been an exemplar of how close collaboration can persist and thrive in a changing political environment.