

Deep Learning-based Damage Mapping with InSAR Coherence Time Series

Oliver Stephenson¹, Tobias Köhne¹, Eric Zhan¹, Brent Cahill¹, Sang-Ho Yun², Zachary Ross¹, Mark Simons^{1,2}

¹Caltech, ²Jet Propulsion Laboratory/Caltech  @SeismOlliegist  oliver.stephenson@caltech.edu

Caltech

Using sequential synthetic aperture radar observations of the ground before a natural disaster, we can train a recurrent neural network to detect anomalous changes to the ground surface, attributed to building damage. This allows for automatic damage mapping, day and night, in all weather conditions.

