

How to estimate the transfer function

Methodological background

- Instead of estimating a representation of the input, the network learns how to get from the input to the target

Input signal recorded at station A

Target signal recorded at station B

Output representation of the transfer characteristics between the two stations

Goal: Prove that the network is able to predict the wave field at station B